Ann De Kelver – Koen Van Damme

- Inspiration for the daily work place
- High class design and photography
- How we work and store our products influences the quality of our lives

We live in a fast-changing, highly technological society which influences how we live and work. Work spaces should be polyvalent and the buildings equipped with the very latest technical devices, so companies could use their buildings as trump cards : offices in the 'war for talent', warehouses in the 'war for just-in-time'.

These concept books are both inspiring and practical. The flowing and detailed texts of Ann De Kelver, the stylish pictures of interior photographer Koen Van Damme and the contemporary layout of Inge Van Damme, show how offices and warehouses can reach more harmony, aesthetics and efficiency.
