Marc Sloopmaekers

- › Latest trend in contemporary gardening
- › Beautiful and inspiring photography
- › A clear overview of all modern techniques and materials to construct your own swimming pool

Now that the call for a purer nature is sounding louder and louder swimming ponds are one of the most important contemporary garden trends.

More and more people long for a glorious watery spot in their own garden, where they are able to find refreshment and swim around in harmony amongst plants and water animals.

In Natural swimming pools expert and biologist Jean Vanhoof shows a couple of his most beautiful projects and explains how you can construct your own natural swimming pools. He describes the factors that influence natural water purification and he gives a clear overview of the existing techniques and possibilities that offer modern materials.
